WHO IS SHE ?

HER BACKGROUND, PAST EXPERIENCES, AND IMPORTANT PEOPLE

Who is Jocelyne? She is an IB Junior at St. Petersburg High School with a knack for organization and artistic interpretations. She is high-achieving, involved, charismatic, and loud. Most would see her as just that: a straight-A student with her life figured out.

But she has more depth in her character as much as any person does. She was born to immigrant parents who came to America in hopes of providing a better future for her and her sister. She is ethnically Chinese but generations of her family have lived in Indonesia. Due to this, she knows more about Chinese culture but her parents speak Bahasa Indonesian. A small house providing a roof over four heads. A place to call home. She has grown to love her culture and be proud of who she is.

She loves art. Illustrations, graphic designs, music, harmonizing, acting, playwriting, poem writing. Weaving a story out of words, emotions, ideas, and expressions. Her passion for art has led her to the countless extracurriculars she's involved in. That love among other things such as planning, organizing, or leading, drives her involvement and sets the stage for her student-to-school engagement.

PLAN

Jocelyne is involved in a range of extracurriculars. For the arts, she does theatre as she is part of the Thespians, she is in the Pitchforks a capella group, and she is an Improv Club co-founder. For service, she is a proud member of the Keymmunity. For her own pleasure, she is co-founder of Asian Student Association, Executive VP of SGA, President of Cohort Club, and she is on the board of many honor societies.

SUCH AS ACTING, ILLUSTRATING, OR SINGING.

There is an all-girls a cappella group at SPHS that she is in called the Pitchforks. It's filled with talented girls of all grades and directed by the choir teacher at our school, Mr. David Lawhead. She's been part of this group since her freshman year due to her sister's influence. She sang alto her first year but sang tenor in her sophomore year since both of the tenors, including her sister, were seniors and graduated. This year, she's back to alto and she's helping train a freshman who will sing the alto part with her.

In Pitchforks, they sing beautiful harmonies in many different songs depending on their season. They always know the basics: SPHS's alma mater and the national anthem. During the fall season, they sing the national anthem before every home football game and during the winter season, they sing a variety of SATB-arranged holiday songs. They perform these songs wherever they are invited ranging from downtown gigs to church guest singers. One of their traditions is singing in the Woodlawn neighborhood which is always a delight. During the spring season, they get invited to different gigs, sing their Valentine songs around the school, and compete in Solo Ensemble. Last year, a couple of members of the Pitchforks and Jocelyne sang with the Suncoast Singers, a local choir also conducted by their director

Mr. Lawhead which landed her a solo where she sang "Operator" by The Manhattan Transfer. It was an impactful experience as she was able to explore the range of her voice and have a choir sing behind her. She spends two afternoons a week with this wonderful group and she wouldn't trade it for anything.

PIANO

Ever since she was young, She's always played an instrument of some sort. She started playing the piano and the violin when she was 3 years old and although she stopped playing violin, She's been playing piano for over 10 years. She's consistently had piano lessons every week and participated in recitals where she plays a classical or romantic piece. In one instance she's actually played an original piano piece that she wrote herself!

THEATRE

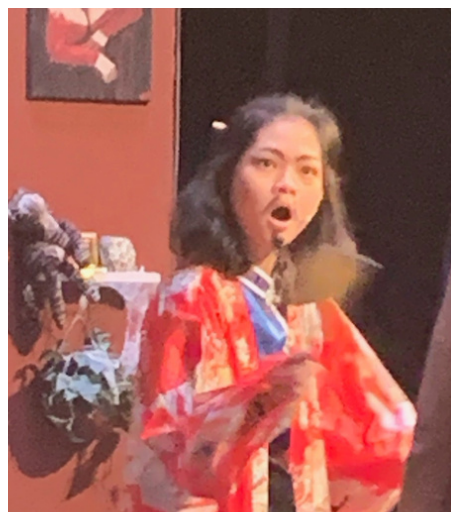

Jocelyne was first introduced to theatre in high school, freshman year. She was interested in participating in theatre when she was in middle school however COVID-19 threw a wrench in her plans. Once high school came along, she decided to take a chance and audition for the fall play, Game of Tiaras where she was cast as Dwarf 1, one of the hilarious dwarves who follow Snow White. Although it was a small role, she had lots of fun with the theatre community and the other dwarf, who happened to become one of her closest friends till today. After that, she actively did everything she could in theatre such as the plays, musicals, district/state, Goldfever, Freshman Follies, and One Acts. Every year, she competes in the Districts Thespian Festival with a solo musical event along with other events. She's quite grateful to have been given the opportunity to move on to the States Thespian Festival with her musical solo for the last two years.

She's been part of every production as of now with a variety of roles such as Rodrigo 2 in the spring musical: Little Women freshman year, Louie Fan in the fall play: The Butler Did It Again sophomore year, and Doody in the spring musical: Grease sophomore year. Her first solo on stage was singing "Those Magic Changes" as Doody and it was a magical experience. This year, she is an assistant student director of the fall production which allows her to gain experience as a part of crew and as a director.

KEY CLUB

Jocelyne first learned about Key Club due to her sister, who became president in her senior year. She knew right from then that she wanted to join. The community is rich, diverse, and full of wonderful people who strive to make a change. She found herself welcomed by such a community, and she has found a lot of friends from the club. They work on many different service projects in school or locally. Some are one-time large projects such as the Blood Drive while others are consistent through smaller meetings such as homeless meals. She wanted to increase her involvement in the club so she ran for Webmaster last year, and now she provides her services by helping with the technological side of planning projects.

Foreword by Jocelyne Lioe (10th Grader)

AS A FIRST-GENERATION STUDENT FROM A LOW-INCOME FAMILY, IT'S REALLY IMPORTANT TO UNDERSTAND THE COLLEGE PLANNING PROCESS

Jocelyne has been in the College Planning Cohort since 6th grade when she participated in their Summer Bootcamp. It started out as just that until she began to engage more in the units and information. She's become more passionate about the importance of equity in education and the importance of having access to resources and opportunities. In order to make a lasting impact on a community of students similar to her, she became more involved in the program as the president of their Youth Leadership Board. She's worked with the founders of the program consistently with developing her own body of work as well as how she may spread this knowledge to others who may need it as well.

The mission statement and the reason for founding the studio listed on the website

At the end of last year, she was taking lessons with an organization along with her friend specifically on graphic design with Adobe Illustrator. At some point during lessons, they learned that many organizations, including non-profits, pay a lot of money for graphic designs or illustrations. After polishing their design skills, they decided that they wanted to make use of their talents and help non-profits by reducing those costs.

They developed their idea, created a website, set up an email, and contacted many different non-profits looking for illustration help to offer their services. Although their small, makeshift, digital studio is still new, they've gotten a couple of responses and they hope to make an impact in some way, no matter how little it is!

STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

She's been a part of SGA since she started high school as Freshman Class President. Every year she strives to make more lasting changes in her school and work to make the school more reflective of the student body. By definition, her position and purpose in SGA is to be a representative of the student body leading her to set up projects and help plan events for her school.

For the last two years, she's been class president, however this year she is executive vice president which equates to more responsibility and commitment. However, it also means that she can make more of an impact and directly help with the projects that she's always loved working on.

Asian Student Association

College Cohort Club

CO-FOUNDERS

Throughout her high school years, she has founded or revived multiple clubs with other students as they have noticed a lack in those facets. The first one she co-founded was the Asian Student Association with three other students. This club had already existed previously however it dipped during COVID which was the reason why they revived it. For this club, they wished to create a community for Asian students and give others the opportunity to learn more about Asian cultures through the different events we plan such as trivia lunches, potlucks, or movie nights. This year, they hope to have more activities that can include more people and spread more knowledge.

Along with that, she founded the College Cohort Club in her sophomore year, a high school chapter of the College Planning Cohort mentioned above. This club gives students who may not have the time or ability to commit to the larger cohort the opportunity and resources to learn the same knowledge that is important to know for college planning processes. This year, she hopes to make this club more personalized with their help and she plans on putting this in action.

In a similar vein, she also set up her school's Environmental Club as a high school chapter of Keep Pinellas Beautiful, allowing them to plan more projects with support and spread their service locally.
